

SA Lecturer

- A lecturer provides formal classroom or laboratory instruction in an academic discipline. The title is normally limited to individuals who have at least a master's degree and are no longer enrolled as graduate students.
- Graduate students may be given the lecturer title (rather than the usual Teaching Assistant title) if they are carrying complete responsibility for a course and function in the same manner that a faculty or instructional academic staff member does, choosing the course material and having full grading responsibilities.
- Payments made to lecturer are fully taxable as wages, and taxes will be withheld from monthly paychecks.
